

UNREST OF MAN IS OUR UNDOING

President Butler Decries the Decadence of Nation's Moral Standard.

Serious consideration of the present-day spirit of unrest in politics and business marked the address of President Nicholas Murray Butler at the one hundred and fifty-second annual commencement of Columbia University to-day. Degrees were granted to 1,136 candidates and seven honorary degrees were conferred in the presence of an audience that filled the big gymnasium on the Heights.

The parade was more than ordinarily impressive. The line formed at the library. Led by the President and other members of the faculty in their scholastic regalia the long line of graduates, in cap and gown, moved slowly about the campus and into the gymnasium. Music was furnished during the exercises by the University Philharmonic Society.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Science were conferred on Daniel Giraud Elliot, ornithologist and explorer, and upon Baron Kanehiro Takaki, Surgeon-General (Reserve) of the Japanese Navy. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on President William Jewett Tucker, of Dartmouth College; President Benjamin Ide Wheeler, of the University of California; Justice Edward Patterson and Joaquim Nabuco, Brazilian Ambassador to the United States.

President Butler's address was brief. He began by saying that Abraham Lincoln furnished a good example for persons to-day, owing to the fact that Lincoln "remained tranquil amid angry seas." He then said that there is much dissatisfaction with modern social and political formulas. Continuing, he said: "What this unrest has been and is being used by ambitious men for their own selfish ends and for gain by journalistic builders of emotional bonfires is certainly true, but it will not do to dismiss this spirit of unrest with a sneer on that account."

"It has passed far beyond the bounds of the dreamers and visionaries, the violent-minded and the naturally destructive. Men accustomed to honest reflection and themselves possessed of property, always the sheet-anchor of

REJECTED SUITOR KILLS GIRL AND THEN HIMSELF

Accosts Her on Street and Without Warning
Empties Contents of One Revolver and Two Shots from Another Into Her Body.

(Special to The Evening World.)
TROY, N. Y., June 13.—With a morbid jealousy because she spurned the attentions which he paid her, John Carter last night shot and killed Mamie Stanton and, turning the revolver upon himself, committed suicide. The man was twenty-six years of age and Miss Stanton a year his junior. Each was well known in local society circles and was highly respected. The two were neighbors several years ago and the acquaintance thus formed soon ripened into love on the part of Carter. The feeling which the young woman bore toward him was at first friendly, but as Carter passed his suit friendship was turned into hatred. Last evening Miss Stanton and a friend, Miss Nellie Karmagham, were out walking when Carter suddenly appeared behind them. Tapping Miss Stanton upon the shoulder he said:

"I want to see you."
As the astonished young woman looked around Carter drew a revolver from his pocket and fired. The victim sank lifeless but the desperate man stood over her and continued to pour bullets into her prostrate form. Emptying one revolver, he produced another, but after firing two shots from this, suddenly put it in his pocket again and hurried around the corner into an alley. Here Carter placed the smoking revolver to his own forehead and, without hesitating, again pulled the trigger. One shot was enough. He sank to the pavement lifeless.

An autopsy was performed and the bodies were turned over to the respective families of the young people. An inquest was deemed unnecessary. Miss Stanton was about five feet six inches tall and exceptionally good looking. She was a devoted member of St. Francis' Church. Carter was well known throughout the city and a member of several local social organizations.

EXCITING CHASE OF A HIGHWAYMAN

Big Crowd Pursued Reilly and
He Was Clubbed Into Submission.

A large section of the east side of Harlem turned out to-day in chase of a man accused of stealing a purse. The fugitive led the crowd through many streets and was finally beaten into submission on the roof of a flat-house.

Joe Grelo, of No. 3 First avenue, exhibited a purse containing $11 on the rear platform of a One Hundred and Sixteenth street cross-town car at Second avenue, and he says that John Reilly, who was also on the platform, grabbed the wallet and ran.

With several other passengers, Grelo left the car and started the pursuit. Their cries of "Stop thief" attracted hundreds of others, and by the time One Hundred and Seventeenth street was reached it looked to the neighbors like a thousand men were chasing the fleet-footed Reilly.

Reilly ran to Third avenue and through the side door of a saloon there and darted out the front door, bowling over Patrolman Heesen. Heesen recovered his feet quickly, got in the van of the pursuers, followed Reilly to the roof of a Third avenue tenement, and there belabored him with his club until it took an ambulance surgeon and two other policemen to carry his senseless body to the hospital on the street.

But the doctor worked over Reilly and had him ready for Magistrate Baker in the Harlem Police Court, where he was charged with highway robbery. When searched at the station a purse containing $11 was found on Reilly, so the police reported, and Grelo said the purse and money had been stolen from him.

The Greatest Sale of These Suits Ever Known in the Trade's History Is in Progress as You Read

This morning the stirring event began. Basement and Second floor hold scores of counters piled high with the splendid garments, ready with the thousands that will be demanded.

But with all today's tremendous selling you need have no fear that quantities will not be plentiful to-morrow. We started with 14,000 suits this morning, enough to make thirty-five stacks of the boxes as high as the Stewart Building that holds them. If half of the dresses were put in the suit section at one time, you could not get in to look at them. New lots will be brought forward in the morning, presenting the same splendid variety as when the selling started.

All of the dresses are packed one in a box, and you need have no fear that even the lively selling of today has mussed up the dresses that you will select. All are in perfect condition; handsomely laundered; and the variety includes every charming style that individual taste could wish. If you do not get here today, be sure and come early to-morrow.

The groups are as follows:

At $3

$4.50 to $7 Shirt-waist Suits.

At $5

$7.50 to $12 Shirt-waist Suits

At $7.50

$12.50 to $22.50 Shirt-waist Suits
